legger 1 seumounter, 1 Scarputer 2 Scanniser, 2 things, and rich as the country is, it is doubtful if it is propared for the mercase of taxation necessary to compete with England, France or Italy in the matter of a navy In lead, there does not seem any good reason why the United States should do so. It are long age neithed that it was a good thung in time of peace to prepare for war; but it may also be considered as equally well settled that only the wasest preparation should be made England and the continental powers with their contracted coast lines, are compelled to maintain at a fabulous cost enormous naval armsments and if we are going to follow where they have led in the construction of armored fleets we should first combider the cost. We have no contracted coast times, but thousands of miles of them, and it would be a hopeless task to at tompt to build a navy sufficiently numerous in ships to prevent the landing of an enemy at every point between the Penobsoot and Puget Sound Besides we have not the cause for a navy that the European powers have They are always on the verge of war and flight navies are as bull dogs placed at a farmer's gaze to keep off the robber and planderer. They are built not so much for war as to prevent war Navies are wonderfully costly luxuries, and there is danger just now from this steel clad naval enthusiasm that we may go beyond the point of usefulness or necessity to the joint of unlimited luxurious extravagance. We be-lieve there are a number of formidable from clade rotting at various naval stations. They are better employed in this way than in war but there may be too many of them for a country that does not make wer a business.
